TO CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY OF ALL GREAT DEMOCRATIC LEADERS.

In many parts of the country during the month of January there were large and notable Democratic gatherings in honor of the birthday of Andrew Jackson. The old established idea of holding Jackson Day dinners was given fresh impetus this year by Chairman Cordell Hull, of the Democratic National Committee, who sees clearly in these gatherings a most practical way of maintaining party interest and accord and of stimulating and unifying party activity.

It is now suggested by Chairman Hull that Democrats improve a like opportunity in celebrating the natal day of Thomas Jefferson, the founder of democracy, and it is further suggested that this custom can be extended to bring Democrats together in all parts of the country at birthday celebrations of other notable Democratic leaders. The Democratic party has always been a party of giants, and in the writings and speeches of its great leaders there is inspiration and guidance upon almost every great question that arises in our public affairs.

Now that the Democratic party is almost on the eve of a return to power, there is no finer incentive to action and no safer guide to membership of the party everywhere in attaining victory, than the examples of these Democratic sages, the dead and the living.

COST OF LIVING HIGHER TO WAGE WORKER, SAYS EMPLOYERS' BOARD.

Wage-workers in the United States are compelled to meet a living cost that is rising faster than their wages, according to facts gathered and compiled by the National Industrial Conference Board. This board represents employers and is not likely to present statistics or conclusions with a conscious bias in favor of the workers of the country.

The cost of living for wage-earners in November, 1922, was 1.8 per cent higher than in July, 1922, the Industrial Conference Board reports. The figures covered the cost of food, clothing, fuel, light and rents. The largest increase was in fuel. The price of bituminous coal advanced 20.7 per cent between July and November. Anthracite coal also underwent a considerable increase.

HOW CAN WE LEARN AND HELP BAY ST. LOUIS?

It isn't possible for the smaller towns to conduct their municipal affairs along the identical lines of the big cities. Neither is it necessary. But the big cities have many progressive movements and some worthy institutions that towns the size of Bay St. Louis could reduce to a small scale and profit therefrom.

And we wish to say right here that we have many innovations and public improvements, possibly patterned after the larger cities, that are indeed a success and a credit to the city and its administration. We are of the opinion that the municipally waterworks system, for instance, will prove an improvement of unusual excellence and inestimable value.

Bay St. Louis can't have a big, systematized Commercial Club, with a high-salaried secretary and a small army of assistants. Neither can we hope to raise a big cash fund with which to send field representatives into other sections to bid for factories and new industries. But we can make this the banner year in our history, and pave the way for continuous progress by following out these "stunts" on a smaller scale. We can have our Rotary or Kiwanis Club, as was suggested last year by such citizens as George R. Rea, E. J. Leonard, E. E. Lucas, R. C. Engman, John Osoinach, G. E. Temple, C. C. McDonald, Leo W. Seal, Carl Marshall and many others. In the absence of this, we could have our own organization and hold regular meetings and talk over needed improvements, and organize ourselves into active committees that will work toward securing those improvements.

We can get together and frame ways by which the advantages of this community can be put before the outside world without the expenditure of a lot of money, and we can devise ways of interesting hotels, the manufacturing concern seeking a new location, or the man who wants to establish himself in business in a progressive, wide-awake town. In other words, the big city has no monopoly on co-operation. We can co-operate here without having to ask anyone's permission. Think it over. Think what it would mean to the entire town and community adjoining. And we'll gladly join in bringing about a community meeting to pave the way for the good things we know we can get if we'll only join hands and go after them.

TIME FOR THE TAR POT.

Unable to get his name on the front page as often as he would like, a New York minister named Grant has declared from the pulpit that the miracles performed by Christ were not miracles at all, and that every scientist in the world today understands exactly how they were done. Now his church is crowded every Sunday, though an attempt is being made by heads of his denomination to oust him from the pulpit. And we believe firmly that if left to the people of Bay St. Louis he wouldn't get another chance to decorate a pulpit by making such sensational announcements. There are some things our people hold very dear, regardless of what church denomination they belong to, and one of them is faith in the truth of the Holy Bible. When a man dares to attack the veracity of that book he tears at an institution sacred to the hearts of many millions. Not only that, but he shows how shallow a man can become when he is desirous of notoriety. And he also reminds us that it is even yet a little too early to put away the tar pot and the feathers for good and all.

THE USELESS "GOOD CITIZEN."

There is a certain type of man in every community who poses as a good citizen. He breaks no laws, lives morally, pays his honest debts and is never tangled up with the law in any manner. But he lives of himself, by himself and for himself exclusively. When the call is issued for volunteers to put across a community movement and give a boost, he never answers. When calamity has befallen people in certain localities and charity flies to their rescue, he is never one of their number. When money is needed for a public enterprise his name is never on the list. When he sees some neighbor stuck in the mud he detours to avoid him. In fact, if he stood on the shore and saw the ship of State sinking, he would never offer to throw out a line. And if all mankind was fashioned from this same kind of clay, have you ever thought what would happen? There would be no churches, no hospitals for the sick, no institutions for the unfortunate nor restrooms for the weary. Think of it, Mr. Bay St. Louis man. And if you are about to become a useless "good citizen," read this little article twice. Of course, it could hardly fit you, dear reader of The Echo.

Of course it isn't done to dodge taxes, but it's funny that stock dividends became so popular all at once.

No man can know it all, but he can be interviewed a few times and get the notion that he does.

You never can tell about the stables. A few years from now girls may be buying frickles at the drug store.

WHERE PART OF TAX MONEY PAID IN HANCOCK COUNTY GOES.

The question is often asked, "Why are taxes high?"

This ever-increasing question is propounded by the Jackson Clarion-Ledger. That journal in part answers it. It says because the legislature has established so many institutions throughout the State, all of which require great sums of money, not only for building, but for maintenance.

The State levy, it was expected, would have been reduced by this time, but every legislature increases the appropriations for maintenance of public institutions until today the amount is staggering. Taxpayers in Hancock county help carry the burden, and it is growing rather than decreasing. It is apparent it will continue. The thought arises: Where will it stop? Mississippi has many public institutions, all meritorious. But the fact remains we are running ahead of our revenues and it is costly.

"Such institutions ask for small appropriations at first," says the Clarion-Ledger, "until they run into hundreds of thousands of dollars."

"No one doubts that the tuberculosis sanatorium, near Megees, is doing good work, but since its establishment in 1914, it has cost the State more than $1,100,000, not to mention liberal donations of land and money, as the following statement, recently issued, will show."

"The legislature of 1916 appropriated $25,000 to begin the institution."

"Citizens of Megees donated 200 acres of land, while the G. and S. I. gave the sum of $2,000. A special session in 1917 increased the appropriation $31,500 and with this money a service building, nurses' home, power house, laundry, two 20-bed wards, administration building, servants' home were built. This included the purchase of a 383-acre farm one mile from the sanatorium and which now supplies all the milk, syrups, strawberries and most of the butter, eggs and vegetables; later three cottages were built by individuals and a ward by Jones county, bringing the capacity to 75 patients."

After a vigorous campaign in 1919 the legislature of 1920 appropriated $1,043,000 for additional buildings to take care of the increased demand; these new units are nearing completion and are composed of the main infirmary, service building, nurses' home, power house and laundry. The negro infirmary will be built during the summer. A part of the new buildings are now in service, including the power plant, laundry, ice plant and cold storage."

CHURCH ADVERTISING.

Every church should advertise; every church should set aside money for newspaper advertising, the Rev. J. T. Brabner, of Chicago, chairman of the committee on conservation and advance of the Methodist Episcopal Church, declared in an address on Sunday last.

Churches in cities the size of Bay St. Louis should advertise. Rev. Feasterun, pastor of the local Methodist church, tried it in the columns of this paper shortly before he left here, and reported success. Had he remained he probably would have continued and enlarged the scope of advertising.

"The church can send its message in the papers to non-church readers and to those of the members de-tar-ted at home because of sickness, business and other causes," the Rev. Brabner said in Chicago Sunday.

"The preacher speaks to hundreds, while the newspapers speak to thousands and millions. Church members should assist editors, but criticism of editors and editorial policies of news is harmful. The pulpit and press should pull together and not apart," said the speaker. And this certainly applies to all localities.

AUTO-THEFT LAWS.

We note where the Ohio legislature has passed a law providing a penitentiary sentence of from 5 to 10 years for the theft of an automobile. It reads like a good law, and we believe Hancock county motorists would do well to urge their representative to put forward a measure of this kind at our own capital. Some of us can remember when the theft of a $150 horse meant someone would be strung up by the neck. Yet today a man can steal a $1500 auto and tomorrow he is walking the streets a free citizen. The sum of $150 wasn't any harder to get a few years back than it's hard to get the sum of $1500 now. And when a man steals, the principle is the same, whether he takes a stick of candy from a baby or a costly sedan from a banker. What is needed is more pen sentences for auto thieves. And the sooner every State enacts a law similar to the one passed in Ohio the safer the motorist public will be.

LESSON FOR MISSISSIPPI COAST FARMERS.

Wherever trucking has been tried it has been a very profitable enterprise, but sections of the State that have prospered most from truck farming did not attain their prosperity in a single year. In Copiah county, where hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of produce are raised and shipped each year, there is a generation of farmers who have learned over a period of years just how to grow and market their crops. In a few years the farmers of the Mississippi Coast will profit and it is safe to predict that this industry is not the least of the great developments we have to look forward to. —Pascagoula Chronicle-Star.

HANCOCK COUNTY AND GOOD ROADS.

Hancock county's awakening and activity in the interest of good roads is attracting attention. The Clarion-Ledger (Miss.) item reproduced the two-column editorial on good roads and proposed bond issue appearing in an issue of The Echo two weeks since. The occasion also caused the Pascagoula (Miss.) Chronicle to carry the following editorial:

The tide of sentiment for roads of permanent type, brought on principally by the increasing expense of maintaining dirt and gravel roads, and the demand made on trunk highways by constantly increasing automobile and truck travel, has firmly taken hold of the people of Hancock county, and Saturday they will go to the polls and decide whether or not bonds for $400,000 shall be issued to build two concrete highways through their county. One of the roads will be the section of the Old Spanish Trail through Hancock county, which connects with New Orleans; the other will connect with the road to Poplarville and the outside world through that section.

If the issue passes, and reports from Bay St. Louis indicate that it will, Hancock county will have swung into line in the effort coast counties are making to finish the Old Spanish Trail through Southern Mississippi. The road building program will surpass the one now in progress in Jackson county, which is regarded as one of the biggest in the State.

However, Hancock county has recognized the importance of connecting the county with New Orleans, the Old Spanish Trail—the great transcontinental highway that will open the Gulf Coast to tourists from all over the land. The county has also recognized the future of building trunk highways of any other material than that which is regarded as permanent, so maintenance costs can be reduced to a minimum.

The Sea Coast Echo, published at Bay St. Louis, has the following to say in endorsement of the road bond issue:

"The present dirt roads, even at their best, are not desirable, neither permanent nor a liability to every property owner who pays taxes. Dirt roads in the end mean more taxes. Permanent roads spell improvements, a civilizing influence and less taxes. These are facts that are easy to recognize."

Permanent roads shorten distances, bring communities closer and people better acquainted and with better understanding; promote trade, good will and resultant happiness. Some one has said that good roads are the best civilization for the reason people who were wont to a provincial life now go out and get about; meet people, and conditions arise whereby opportunities are presented, which embraced, mean prosperity and a better enjoyment of the world and its advantages."

GRASS.

(By John J. Ingalls, Late Senator of Kansas.)

"Grass is the forgiveness of nature—her constant benediction. Fields trampled with battle, saturated with blood, torn with the ruts of cannon, grow green again with grass, and carnage is forgotten. Streets abandoned by traffic become grass-grown like rural lanes, and are obliterated; forests decay, harvests perish, flowers vanish, but grass is immortal. Heated by the sun, the hosts of winter, it withdraws into the impenetrable fortress of its subterranean vitality and emerges upon the solicitation of spring. Sown by the winds, by wandering birds, propagated by the subtle horticulture of the elements, which are its ministers and servants, it softens the rude outline of the world. Its tenacious fibers hold the earth in its place, and prevent its soluble components from washing into the sea. It invades the solitude of deserts, climbs the inaccessible slopes and forbidding pinnacles of mountains, modifies climates, changes the history character and destiny of nations. Unobtrusive and patient it has immortal vigor and aggression. Banished from the thoroughfares or the field, it bides its time to return, and when vigilance is relaxed, or the dynasty has perished, it silently resumes its throne, from which it has been expelled, but which it never abdicates. It bears no blazon of bloom to charm the senses with fragrance or splendor, but its homely hue is more enchanting than the lily or the rose. It yields no fruit in earth or air, yet should its harvest fall for a single year famine would depopulate the world."

ECONOMY OF HARD-SURFACED ROADS.

There are something like fifty million dollars invested in improved roads in Mississippi, the greater part of this sum being still outstanding in bonds. But the cost of maintaining these roads is reduced to a minimum, by the fact that the roads are hard-surfaced, and the money that ordinarily went towards upkeep will be used to retire the bonds. Gradually Mississippi is getting away from the disastrous practice of building roads that have to be replaced before they are paid for. —Pascagoula Chronicle-Star.

AMENDMENT TO FISH LAW.

Be it ordered by the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County, Mississippi, that the Fish Law of this State, as amended, be further amended as follows:

Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any one to catch by net or line or in any fresh water fish in any stream in Hancock County, during the months from February 1st to May 1st.

Section 2. It shall be unlawful to sell in Hancock County any fresh water fish during the following months, from February 1st to May 1st.

Section 3. Non-residents shall not be permitted to fish fresh water fish in Hancock County at any time, without first procuring a license and if said sections are fixed at $5.00, and shall be procured from the Sheriff of Hancock County.

Section 4. Any person violating these rules shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction shall be fined not more than $50.00 and imprisoned not more than 30 days in jail at the discretion of the trial judge.

Section 5. These regulations shall be enforced by the Sheriff of Hancock County, and if any sections are held void it shall not affect the other sections.

Section 6. These regulations shall be published for one week in The Sea Coast Echo, a newspaper published in Bay St. Louis, and said law shall become effective after said publication.

I, A. K. KERGOSIEN, Clerk of the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County, Mississippi, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of a resolution of the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County, Mississippi, passed at its regular February meeting, A. D. 1923, and of record in Minute Book K, pages 171-172.

Witness my hand and the seal of said County, this 9th day of February, A. D. 1923.
